

Vollett - Upton

In an Easter setting of spring blossoms and lilacs Central United church Saturday afternoon at 5:30 June Elizabeth, daughter of Rev. R. R. Upton and Mrs. Upton, of Calgary, pledged marriage vows to Harold Stewart Villett, son of Mr. & Mrs. W. H. Villett of Winnipeg. Mr. Upton read the marriage service for his daughter and Rev. C. Anderson Lawson assisted at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by William Kerr of Bellevue Alta, the bride was wearing a floor-length model of white tulle which featured an inset lace yoke encrusted with seed pearls on the bodice, white bows of satin caught the bouffant hoop skirt in scalloped effect to reveal lace ruching. Her veil cascaded to the floor from a satin zipped headpiece encrusted with pearls and a necklace of matching pearls was her only ornament. Lilies, roses with pink roses, composed the show bouquet.

Full-skirted floor length model of embroidered marquisette in shades of orchid and yellow respectively, were worn by the bridesmaids, Mrs. Mavis Upton, sister of the bride, and Miss Helen Kelly, who carried the bouquets composed of pink carnations, lilies and daffodils.

Paul Villett attended his brother's groomsmen, and the guests were welcomed by Bramwell Goodwin and Len Arnold. Mrs. Phyllis Chapman played the wedding music, and Miss Faye Miller sang "Bless This Home" during the signing of the register.

Following the ceremony a reception for 45 guests was held at the Empress hotel where pink and white streamers decorated the bride's table, which was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake flanked by two vases of white flowers.

Receiving the bride party, Mrs. Upton was attired in a formal black and turquoise blue crepe, accented with trim of silver sequin bows. Her husband was dressed in a white tuxedo, accented with pink daisies, and pink roses formed her shoulder corsage.

Dr. and Mrs. G. H. Villett, of Edmonton, uncle and aunt of the groom, stood proxy for his parents who were unable to be present. For the occasion Mrs. Villett wore a long frock in rose tone, with corsage of roses in pastel shade.

Dr. Villett proposed the toast to his nephew's bride, and Paul Villett gave the toast to the bride attendants. During the reception vocal solos were given by Miss Mavis Upton, Miss Helen Kelly, Miss Faye Miller and Miss Bushfield, accompanied by Mrs. R. C. Upton, mother of the bride.

The bridal couple left later for Banff to spend their honeymoon, after which they will take up residence at 1187 103rd Ave. in Edmonton. To travel Mr. Villett changed to a burgundy suit worn beneath a blue top coat trimmed with gray muskrat. Gray accessories completed her attire.

While they do not always, in themselves, produce colds, drafts often cause the vitality, particularly of infants, the aged and the sickly. The medical profession, therefore, says, "Dodge the draft."

Other factors tending to weaken resistance to colds include sudden change in temperature and exposure to dampness.

GETTING RUN-DOWN

When a person is physically or mentally fatigued, the system is wide open to infection. Nothing lowers resistance to disease more than fatigue.

Fatigue may result from lack of sleep, over-exertion, excess of any kind including too much sports, and from long hours of work, or of study. The doctor warns, "Don't tire yourself down to the point at which disease can get at you."

Business Spotlight

A gap in the machinery for raising money was emphasized by Donald Gordon, deputy-governor of the Bank of Canada, in an address to Toronto members of the Investment Dealers' Association of Canada.

This is in the field of small enterprises.

Governments and large corporations may float bond issues; the public through stock exchanges may invest in anything from gilt edged issues to speculative mines; the man with a definite piece of collateral can borrow on that; small personal loans may be had now even from the banks.

But the man with an idea, struggling to build an enterprise, has no such well-defined place to go.

Mr. Gordon's remarks indicated he thought there should be more opportunity for Canadians to invest in one another. He said in part: "With modest exceptions new risk capital for smaller enterprise cannot be found in Canada through the facilities of our investment dealers, and we need techniques to fill the gap."

"That gap in our money-market mechanisms has been commented upon many times and, as you know, the government has provided some facilities through the establishment of the industrial development bank. But there is still a need for the other type of thing and the lack of it is bound to become more and more noticeable."

Fire Prevention

Nine out of every ten fires started in the province during 1947 had their origin in the carelessness of Alberta citizens according to recent figures released by the Forestry Branch, Department of Lands and Mines. Every year from Alberta's 159,000 square miles of forests containing over 30 billion square feet of saw material, pulp wood, cord wood etc., material sufficient to build 80,000 homes is destroyed by forest fires. Lightning, fire bugs, explosions sparks from trains etc., contribute to one in every ten of the fires with the average citizen being responsible for the remaining nine.

This year the Forestry Branch of the Department of Lands and Mines is embarking on an extensive educational campaign in an effort to reduce the vast amount of timber destroyed by this hazard. The campaign aimed at campers, hunters, farmers and John Q. Citizen emphasizes four points:

1. Hold your match until it's cold. Then pinch it to make sure.
2. Crush out your cigarette, cigar, pipe ashes. Use an ashtray. Never throw burning objects out a car window.
3. Drown your camp fire, then stir and drow it again.
4. Ask about the law, and a permit, before burning grass, brush, fence rows or trash. The follow safe rules: burn only on still evenings have help handy, kill every spark.

Britain's Recovery Programme

IN THE RECENT NATIONAL ECONOMIC SURVEY, published by the British government, the people there were once more reminded of the critical nature of their present economic situation and were told of the rigorous programme for recovery which must be carried out in the coming months. It called for a full understanding of the need for stern measures to meet this crisis and for full co-operation in carrying out the necessary measures. "The Government," the survey said, "regards it as essential to the whole conception and success of an economic plan democratically carried out that there should be the widest possible understanding of the facts of the situation and the targets laid down." The magnitude of Britain's war effort, and the necessity for rebuilding many industrial sites, has made post-war recovery a difficult matter, but in spite of that, there has been steady progress since the summer of 1945.

Main Object To Save Dollars

In spite of transportation difficulties and fuel shortages, industrial production in Britain rose in 1947 by nine per cent. over that of 1946. This success was due in part to voluntary increases in working hours, and partly to great effort on the part of individual workers. Since that time further advances have been made toward the goal for 1948, which is for an export rate 50 per cent. above the pre-war level. Since one of the most serious aspects of Britain's economic situation is the shortage of dollars, the main objective outlined for this year are concerned with conserving dollars by decreasing Britain's imports from dollar countries and by producing at home as many articles as possible normally imported from the Western Hemisphere. At the same time, the report aims at increasing British exports to dollar countries. All this involves continued austerity for the British people, and a great effort to step up the production of articles for export.

Targets Set For Industry

There is hope that the textile industry will produce 97 per cent. more woollen and worsted goods than in 1947, and that production of cotton goods and yarns will be 74 per cent. above that of last year. The target for steel mills is over one million tons more than in 1947, in spite of the fact that this industry has for some time been breaking production records. It is also hoped to raise machinery shipments to 180 per cent. above the pre-war average, while manufacturers of vehicles have been asked to raise exports to 240 per cent. of the 1938 figure. All these objectives will have to be reached by individual industries if Britain's export trade is to be 50 per cent. above that of 1938, which is the figure considered necessary if satisfactory factory progress is to be made in 1948. To achieve this goal the British people will be called upon to make continued sacrifices. Housing schemes will have to be postponed, as will plans for reduced working hours and production of goods for home markets. In addition, food supplies will again be reduced. The outlook for 1948, according to the survey, is "full of uncertainties and bound to be one of great anxiety." There is, however, no suggestion of defeat and it is to be sincerely hoped that the courage and determination of the British people and their government will soon be rewarded with the success they deserve in their great struggle for economic recovery.

Better Roads For Tourists 'Imperative'

OTTAWA.—D. Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian Government Travel Bureau, told the Senate committee on tourist traffic that to cater to the vast army of travelers which would continue to visit Canada from the United States year after year it was "imperative" to see that Canada's highway system was vastly improved. He believed Canada's 1948 tourist traffic would exceed that of last year. He believed that for many years to come automobile would bring to this country from 80 to 90 per cent. of the American visitors who vacation in Canada. This year the number of inquiries is running more than 1,100 a day. If Canada could keep its prices at a "reasonable" level it would get a large influx of tourists, if not competition from other parts of the continent would seriously cut into Canada's tourist industry, Mr. Dolan said.

Women Inspectors Like Their Job

EMERSON, Man.—Four Winnipeg women, working as customs inspectors at the United States-Canada border town of Emerson, believe they have one of the most congenial jobs on record. They say the majority of people crossing the border do not try to smuggle articles across to the other side.

"We've had no unpleasant experiences," says M. M. Hazel Pringle, one of the four women. "I have never had to search anyone, though the law says we may."

Travelers are told of the regulations before they cross over, so they know before they come back, she explained. "Most of them are patriotic and co-operative."

ALBERTA CAR LICENSES AT NEW PEAK IN 1947

EDMONTON.—Alberta issued 102,500 car licenses in 1947, shattering all previous records and exceeding the previous year's total of 95,000. Drivers' licenses also set a new high of 184,000, against 71,000 in the previous year.

This year Alberta returns to the old system of two license plates on motor vehicles. In order to meet a rush demand, the province has placed an order for 110,000 sets of plates.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

A Negro was pleading his own case to save the price of a lawyer. He called the chief witness to the stand and said: "Joshua, where was I when we stole those chickens?"

The older man sighed. "Well," he said at last, "if you are going to use any, you might as well go the limit."

William: "I shall have to give up smoking. The doctor says that one lung is nearly gone."
Wife: "Oh, Bill! Couldn't you hold out a little longer until we get enough coupons for the new rug?"

"Why?"
"Well, I've made up my mind to refuse him, and I simply can't get him to propose."

Doctor: "You should take a bath before you retire."
Patient: "But, doctor, I can't afford to retire for another 20 years."

"What did you give your baby for his first birthday?" asked Mrs. Richards.
"We opened his money-box," replied her friend, "and gave him a lovely electric iron."

Beggar: "Well, see that tree over there?"
Lady: "Yes."
Beggar: "I can't."

"Sorry to put you to the trouble of fetching water specially for me," said an English tourist who had ordered whisky in a Highland inn.
"Nae trouble at all," replied the host. "I always keep a drop on the premises in case of fire."

Perennial Wheat No Longer Unbelievable Myth

Winter Hardiness Needed If Wheat Is To Be Of Value

By T. R. MELVILLE-NESS
Central Press Canadian

REGINA, Sask.—Plant breeders at the University of Saskatchewan, working with crosses between grasses and wheats, have come along with an interesting development—a wheat-like plant with perennial habit, and near immunity to a large number of races of stem and leaf rust.

The difficulty is that the present lines have no winter hardiness and can only be carried through several croppings under green house conditions. But perennial wheat is "no longer an unbelievable myth," according to Dr. J. B. Harrington of the university field husbandry department. "Winter hardiness must be added if the wheat is to be of any value. It may take many years to effect it, but the lines we are working on now present many interesting possibilities," he adds.

For instance, the plants growing in one of the green houses at the university have the grass characteristic of retaining green matter in the stem after the head has ripened. Such a plant, developed to withstand prairie field conditions, would serve a dual purpose. It is possible the grain might be threshed, the straw left to cure, later to be gathered and fed to stock as a valuable and nutritious forage.

Degree Of Stability
What value would perennial wheat have in the western farm economy? Simply this: it could provide a permanent cover crop, capable of preventing much of the dangerous wind and water erosion that threatens the very life of some of our soils. Perennial wheat could mean a degree of stability never believed possible in the present dry country. But in the present lines and the development of a strain hardy enough to withstand the severe winters of the west lie years of painstaking work of breeding and cross-breeding, selection and selection, the disappointments and the shattered hopes the plant breeder knows so well.

Dr. Harrington, who is in charge of wheat breeding at the university, states that the present achievement is the result of work done by Professor I. H. Shebek, also of the university field husbandry department when he was at the Dominion Rust Laboratory at Winnipeg. Mr. Shebek crossed Agropyron elongatum, a hardy grass, with Chinese wheat in 1938, and back crossed the grass-like hybrid with Chinese to get a moderately wheat-like progeny. Successive generations of selecting toward a satisfactory wheat-like plant of perennial habit was interrupted from 1941 to 1945 and resumed in the fall of 1945.

Research Begins
Although Russian scientists are believed to have been working on perennial bread-grain crops since 1928, it was not until 1935 that similar research began in Canada. This was undertaken actually in response to the need for new forage crops which would help solve the problems of drought and soil conservation. That work has the objective of a large seeded hardy grass and is under way at the Dominion Forage Breeding

Plan New Road For Yukon
OTTAWA.—The government plans construction of an all-weather truck road in the Mayo-Keno mining district of the Yukon, Resources Minister Glen announced.
The road, for which an expenditure of $400,000 was asked in the estimates tabled recently, would run from Mayo on the Stewart River to Minto on the Yukon, a distance of approximately 100 miles.
There has been a winter road over the route for many years, but when airplanes took over the contract for delivering mail, the overland freighters discontinued their service. Water navigation, the only other means of delivering freight from Whitehorse to the various communities in the territory, was not dependable.

About 150,000 islands fringe the coast of Norway.

Dr. J. B. Harrington and Prof. I. H. Shebek discuss the future of perennial wheat as they look over specimens of the interesting cereal growing in the greenhouse at the University of Saskatchewan.

Laboratories at Saskatoon and Ottawa.
The work to produce a desirable perennial wheat has thus far been conducted on a small scale basis. If the work was placed on a co-ordinated project basis many crosses could be made and followed up at various points across the prairie region. A full scale program with several research people spending a large part of their time on the work would help materially in increasing the chances of originating a desirable hardy perennial wheat for western Canada within the next decade.

BANGKOK, Siam.—A truck caravan jolted halfway across steaming Don Muang airfield outside storybook Bangkok. From inside one truck came a leopard's snarl. A Himalayan bear growled from another. Three hundred monkeys screamed accompaniment.

Cargo after cargo of belligerent beasts, birds and reptiles was hoisted into a waiting DC-4. Two held a baby elephant each; others, 60 bone-crushing pythons, 20 white-haired gibbons, a pair of Siamese cats. Laborers shoved and pushed under the tropical sun to get three grown-up elephants aboard. First one, then another was coaxed into place, chained to the floor. The third, stubborn as a Missouri mule, refused to have any part of the big ride.

Finally, picnic chow for the trip—bananas, sugar cane, seed and grass—was thrown into the plane. With the confused "trilling" elephant looking on, a flying zoo then lumbered down the runway and staggered into the air.

Noah took them only two by two. And, according to Bibliophiles, he stuck close to the Middle East. This ark was headed a third of the way around the world.

Two days and an ocean later the big plane set down at Ontario, near Los Angeles. Cousin R. Glick, who chartered it from Pacific Overseas Airlines (Siam), Ltd., for $16,200, said this was the first load of wild life ever flown to the United States.

Glick, 55, operator of the Bird Wonderland zoo in Van Nuys, Cal., also had with him a Malayan bear, storks and cranes, cobras, mandrills and baboons, singing bull-birds and mynah talking birds.

RECIPES

FRUIT SALAD

2 oranges
3 bananas
1/2 pound malaga grapes
4 slices pineapple, cubed
12 walnuts
Mix fruit and serve salad dressing on top, or add fruit salad dressing to moisten. Mix with whipped cream or fruit salad dressing, or salad dressing only. May be served in orange cups.

TAPIOCA CREAM PUDDING

1 1/2 tablespoons minute tapioca, or 1/4 cup pearl tapioca
2 cups scalded milk
1 egg
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
Pick over tapioca and soak 1 hour in cold water to cover. Drain, add to milk and cook in a double boiler until tapioca is transparent. Mix the yolks with the sugar and salt. Combine by pouring hot mixture slowly into egg mixture. Return to double boiler and cook until it thickens while stirring constantly. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff, remove from range, chill and serve. If minute tapioca is used, it need not be soaked.

BELL CHIMES

A chime of bells may number from five to 12, and is rung by swinging, causing the clapper inside to strike the bell. Carillons are more elaborate. The bells are stationary and were formerly rung by striking with a hammer. They now are operated by machinery.

White-haired and wiry, Glick has scoured the world for wild life since walking out on a hum-drum business executive's job 25 years ago.

A hobby has become Glick's profession. He trains some birds and animals for the movies (one of his mynahs "starred" in Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.'s fantasy, "Sinbad the Sailor"), sells some to zoos, hospitals and scientific organizations.

Part of the plane's cargo Glick brought from Calcutta—where he has been buying for him—to Bangkok by DC-2. Normally, he follows the practice of the handful of others in his business: buys what he wants from native agents. "It would take too much time for me to go out and catch the stuff myself," he said.

On the plane with Glick, however, was a young man who makes a business of going into the jungle and coming out with the slipperiest of wild life. He is John R. Royola, 26, a handsome Hawaii-born Filipino-American. The elephants and part of the rest of the cargo were his.

Royola decided to use the plane after waiting weeks in Bangkok for cargo space on one of the few United States-bound ships calling here. "Either their holds already were filled," he complained, "or the captains objected to live cargo." He said animal-collectors always had faced these obstacles.

"My stock was eating up my profits so rapidly," Royola explained, "that when I got to figuring it out in terms of time and feed, I discovered that shipping by air was cheaper. I'm going to do it a lot after this."

You can understand why it is worth flying animals when you hear that cobras bring $3,000 to $5,000 each on the American market. Price goes by age, sex, temperament and intelligence.

For nine years (with time out for a United States army stretch) he has traipsed the world, usually about three trips annually, filling orders for such institutions as Rockefeller Foundation and the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Royola has roamed such lands as Alaska, the Amazon, Bengal and Borneo hunting everything from a rhinoceros to the Gambesian tea-tie fly.

Twice John was bitten by cobras. Once he saved himself by plunging a hypodermic of anti-venom into his body. On one leg he bears an ugly scar of the other life, which he cauterized with gun powder.

Last year Royola figured spectacularly in the Philadelphia press when three cobras he was bringing home broke loose there on the docks of the Niagara Victory. Armed only with a flashlight, Royola threaded through the hold for hours until he had re-bagged all of them. The crew was ready to vote him a medal.

Royola has maintained a small animal farm beside his bungalow outside Bangkok. Nine more elephants, more reptiles, and otters, civets, wildcats, lemur, hornbills, doves and fruit pigeons remain there. He has arranged, however, for a native helper to take them to the United States by ship.

The elephants he captured himself. With an expedition of 50 Siamese hired for four baht (about 16 cents) each daily, he foraged for two weeks through the jungles around Chumporn, on the southern peninsula.

Eventually, the elephants, including the prized six-month-old 600-pound babies, were stampeded into a log-fenced corral. With the aid of the hunt never ends for Glick and Royola. The older man will train part of his collection for Hollywood, then head back for India. As for Royola: "It looks like Java," he says. Well, it's one way to see the world!

Man-made snowstorms were produced in Massachusetts recently by scientists who dropped dry ice pellets from an airplane into an ordinary cloud over Greylock Mountain.

WORLD HAPPENINGS

BRIEFLY TOLD

During 1947 London Transport road vehicles and trains covered 610,000,000 miles—31,000,000 more than in 1946.

Edible food wasted in the United States each year is worth about $5,900,000,000, according to Harvard University's department of nutrition.

Frank Williams has retired after 50 years' county court service at Ipswich, England, but his 93-year-old father is still an active solicitor.

Prof. M. L. E. Oliphant, British atomic research scientist, said he believes it will be five to 10 years before Russia develops formidable atomic weapons.

Death by hanging will be the penalty for Arabs who sell food to Jews, a decree issued by the Arab guerrilla headquarters, somewhere in northern Palestine, said.

Gen. Mohammed Safa, commander of the first division of the Arab volunteer army, died at Arab headquarters in northern Palestine, Arab sources reported.

Monday, June 7, has been fixed for the official celebration in Canada of the birthday of the King. The proclamation fixing the date is contained in a recent issue of the Canada Gazette. The King will be 53 next Dec. 14.

New Projects For Western Parks

OTTAWA.—Mines and Resources Minister J. A. Glen announced the government would proceed with a number of new projects in western national parks.

In B.C. national parks, including Yoho, Kootenay, Glacier and Mount Revelstoke, additional features will be provided in camp grounds.

Mr. Glen stressed the importance of making camp facilities available to "the man in the average income bracket."

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY

"Criminals Are Not Born." Products Of Neglect, States Police Chief

VANCOUVER.—Juvenile delinquency is a symptom of social degeneration involving adults more than children, Chief Constable Walter Mulligan told Bayview Parent-Teacher Association here.

He said "it is the first crack in a break of our established culture," and added that the most disturbing fact is that parents are forgetting their obligations to their children.

The chief cited two factors "which if not checked will plunge us headlong into national decadence."

Failure In Home
"First is failure of the home itself as the first classroom, and second, our national indifference toward evil influences in our life which are beyond the immediate control of parents."

"Criminals are not born. They are the products of neglect, victims of indifference, the result of an age which has tossed morality in the junkyard."

Sunday Schools Praised
The chief criticized homes where "God and religion are considered too old fashioned in an age dedicated to materialism," and cited the need of Sunday school training for the proper development of youngsters.

Chief Mulligan said the rise in crime during 1946 revealed an abnormally high rate of juvenile misbehavior. Persons under 21 were responsible for 51 per cent. of auto

FINDS VICTORY BONDS—Packing a snowball to throw at a chin, Monique Sauriol, 11, of Toronto, found $1,500 in registered victory bonds. The bonds were in a large brown envelope in a pile of snow. She took the bonds home and was playing with them in the living-room when her mother noticed they were valuable. Police said the bonds are part of the loot taken from a Toronto arm by safecrackers. Monique, right, is shown above with her sister.

Only about 30 per cent. of the American people see efficiently without visual aids.

To Hunt Birds' Eggs By Airplane

NEW WESTMINSTER.—Walter Macquire, Raley City ornithologist, and Harold Bailey, Florida millionaire, plan to look for birds' eggs by airplane.

They will charter a plane in Edmonton in May and fly to the vast area of marsh and swamp between Perry River, Maude and Coronation in the Arctic.

Most birds keep their mates for one season and then often change to another.

When men live in peace, the covet

the Women are all day a-dressing themselves other men abroad, and go to work at home, not caring to please their own husbands, whom they despise.

stealing of victuals, compelled perforce by necessity of intolerable hunger and thirst to save himself

ces, and thousands, grinde, tyrant,

PERFECTLY OBLIVIOUS

A man applying for a marriage license in Greenville South Carolina, could not get it because he had forgotten the name of his fiancée.

A worker at a distillery in Moray-shire, Scotland, absent-mindedly turned on the wrong valve, and 800 gallons of fine whiskey flowed into a creek.

A visiting high school band gave a concert in the auditorium in Rocky Mount, North Carolina, and forgot to take home two bass drums and a tuba.

A motorist in Brockton, Massachusetts, who had reported his car "was stolen," reported to police three weeks later that he remembered he had sold it.

A lady in Boston put $55 into her umbrella for safety's sake. When a shower came up suddenly she opened the umbrella, forgetting about the money, and lost it.

A Cleveland man forgot he had moved the day before and used his key to let himself into his old home. The new occupant thought he was a burglar, and shot him.

A sportsman in Puerto Salba, Colombia, travelled 400 miles across the mountain to reach a plain inhabited by big game. There he discovered that he had forgotten to take along his rifle.

Times.

They were just returning from their first day's shooting. Since none had ever handled guns before, there were several casualties.

First came the father with his arm in a sling next one son limping; then the daughter with her head bandaged.

An old ghillie met them and inquired if they had a good day. The father replied that it had been terrible.

"But the bag sir," the ghillie said, pointing to the second son who had just arrived with a sack on his back.

"That," bellowed the father "is the dog!"

only on still evenings — have help

DO YOU SHUDDER?

According to an old superstition, it means "that someone is walking on your grave" when you shudder. The scientific fact is of course, that a shudder, like a shiver, is not a good sign.
It may be evidence of a "grave" chill,
indeed, and chill's aren't to be sneezed at.

The chilled body is highly susceptible to infection. Parents are particularly warned to ensure that their children avoid chills.

HELP IN CASE OF ACCIDENT

In all cases of serious shock or injury, send for a doctor or ambulance at once. In the meantime, apply first aid promptly, but not hastily.

BLEEDING WOUNDS — Bleeding in spurts indicates severing of an artery. Steady flow indicates a vein has been cut. Bleeding from an artery should be stopped by applying pressure of the thumb, a compress or cloth pad over the artery at a point between the bleeding wound and the heart. In bleeding from a vein (steady flow), pressure should be applied on the side away from the heart. Where bleeding is not severe, a compress over the open wound should be sufficient. If bleeding is very severe, tourniquet may be made by tying handkerchief, cloth, belt, strap or neck-tie around the part over compress and using small stick, pencil, or similar article with which to twist and tighten. Do not twist too hard, just enough to stop bleeding. Loosen every twenty minutes to let a little blood escape. Keep the part elevated.

SHOCK — Lay patient flat on back with head low, unless head is bleeding. Remove false teeth, gum or tobacco from mouth. Keep patient warm. Give stimulants such as aromatic spirits of ammonia in water, hot coffee, tea, or water. Do not give stimulant to unconscious patients, or one who may have internal bleeding.

A dignified looking man carrying a pair of woman's shoes, got on a bus. He had evidently collected them from a repair shop and was taking them home to his wife, but had forgotten to have them wrapped.

A man seated opposite him appeared interested. Finally he leaned over, tapped the dignified one on the knee, and said with a knowing wink:

MENTAL HEALTH

True happiness, say Ottawa health authorities, calls for more than mere brawn. Brain, too, must be employed. The department of national health and welfare, in a statement, comments on the inter-relation of physical and mental health. No matter how muscular or strong a person, such attributes of mind as self-control and intelligent direction into acceptable activity are required to ensure true well-being.

HEALTH LAWS

It is just as important for Canadians to know the laws of Nature as the laws of the land, in the opinion of National Health and Welfare advisers. Ignorance of the law is no excuse in social offences, and ignorance of health rules leads to punishment as sure as that which Nature metes out to those who offend her willfully. Public health authorities urge everyone to learn the basic principles of hygiene as outlined in health literature issued free on request through the provincial health departments.

Your Money's Worth in Cotton

THAT'S a fine thing about cotton; whether it's a shirt, a handkerchief, bedsheet or even a graceful wedding gown, you are sure of your money's worth.

Cotton gives value for the money. Long service, resistance to laundering, fastness to sunlight, and above all a clean freshness that make life worth living in winter or summer; these are the things your dollars buy when you spend them on cotton goods.

108 MILLION DOLLARS

...blessing or boomerang?

During 1948 Ottawa will pay back this tremendous total to individual Canadians in the form of refunds on 1942 Income Tax (Compulsory Savings) and as cash for War Savings Certificates maturing during the year. Some of this money may be coming to you.

EXTRA MONEY is always useful, and in homes across Canada these payments will be welcomed as valuable additions to income.

But the catch is that this additional spending power, if translated into immediate buying, would almost certainly drive present prices still higher and increase your own cost of living.

It is, therefore, wise, if your budget permits, to defer your spending, putting the money instead into the purchase of additional CANADA SAVINGS BONDS.

Never forget, the money you have coming to you as a Tax Refund, or as the proceeds from War Savings Certificates, is the fruit of your wartime saving effort. It represents a cash asset; think twice before you spend it.

Canada Savings Bonds can be purchased over the counter at any branch of The Royal Bank of Canada. You can buy them outright for cash, or if you wish, use the proceeds of your government cheque as a down payment for bonds to be paid for by instalments. The procedure is simplicity itself. Our nearest branch will look after all details for you.

"You'll never be sorry you saved."
